

Candid Street Photography

A talk by Gagan Sadana

Tuesday, 22 September, 8pm

Gagan Sadana is a street photographer living in Kent. Working mainly in black and white he is passionate about capturing candid moments of life as seen all around us in towns and cities.

"In my view, each and every street photographer has his/her own unique style. We can draw an inspiration from each others work but ultimately it's our own observation and view of life that shapes what we see in our Viewfinder."

Gagan is a Panasonic Ambassador and a member of the Street Photography London collective. His photograph 'Life is Beautiful' (right) was selected as one of 100 images for the Royal Photographic Society 2015 Biennial Exhibition. He runs regular Street Photography workshops.

The talk runs from 8-10pm and is free for AWPS members, guests are welcome, £3 on the door, tickets can be reserved in advance by email: talks@woolwichphotographic.com
